ABOUT THE BOOK

Most people have a general idea of what it means to be adopted. For some, it's simply a celebration of children finding a new home and for others, there may be a stigma attached to it. But for Patricia Ann Douglas it has meant discovering a predestined path to fulfill her life's purpose. As an adoptee to doting parents and a loving, heavenly Father, she received mantles to birth in ministry and the empowerment of the Holy Spirit to walk out her mandate.

In "I Was Adopted Twice: My Parent's Love, My Father's Redemption," Douglas shares her life story and how through the lens of being adopted both naturally and spiritually, she realized the true value and purpose for her life. Her story isn't one of perfection, but one of triumph over mistakes, victory over fear, courage to overcome religion, and a willingness to boldly possess the territory God assigned her to before the foundation of the world.

ABOUT PATRICIA

Patricia Douglas is the senior pastor of World Covenant Church International alongside her husband Mark Douglas. She is also the founder of "A Few of My Friends" a unique women's ministry designed to bring God's daughters together through nurturing, healing, restoration, deliverance, and laughter; by digging up the hidden treasures placed in them by God. She is a sought-out speaker and has appeared on Christian TV shows such as WHTN/Bridges, Bloom Today, Damascus Roads, Powerfueled Living, and Keys to your Best life. She is a co-author of "Letters to the Woman I Was". She enjoys speaking, traveling, shopping, reading, and always finding that special coffee bistro.

“Author Patricia Douglas is nothing short of authentic and transparent in her book, I Was Adopted Twice. Reading just one chapter made me feel like I was having a fire-side chat with my closest friend. She is relatable and relevant in the way she describes what she has been through, while pointing us to the love and hope we have in Jesus. She is truly an overcomer, and her story reminds us that God's heart is always to redeem us and bring us closer to Him.”
